Do you remember taking your school exams? I do, and sadly, I never did very well in them. My first experience of "exam" was the dreaded 11plus. I can remember sitting there frozen with fear, trying to work out a maths sum. The more I thought about it the worse it was. I scrapped through only just, but I failed nearly all my 0-levels and had to re-sit them later.

Perhaps you've had a similar experience in life when you've had to face a problem or situation. The more we think about the situation, the more overwhelmed we may feel.

When it comes to mission, we may feel like that as a church: we see the hundreds of people on our streets, in our roads, we see some elderly people behind closed doors, we see young people in the streets, we watch the cars racing off down the motorway, or into Wigan in the morning and coming back at night. We see all that and we may feel inadequate: how are we going to reach our community with the Gospel of Christ?

And if we do feel like that, it's not a bad place to be! Because many of the great missionary stories throughout history have started from feelings of inadequacy or vulnerability where individuals have met together and looked at the community and said, "Lord, help! We don't know where to start!"

And, as we journey into the next phase of our Mission-Life together we do well to look at this Old Testament book of Haggai because there are similarities between our context and the one described here.

The prophecy is set in the year 520BC. The Israelites had been in exile for 70 years, held captive by the Babylonians. And now they had returned to their homeland and wanted to rebuild and to honour God and move on together into God's future for them. But as they returned, they realised that they needed a plan. They needed a sense of direction. They needed a vision to unite around so they could all pull together in the same direction.

These Israelites were fundamentally godly people. They weren't lost in sin. God was not angry with them. But now was the moment for them to move into a new future defined by the will of God for them.

And so along comes Haggai. And he is a very interesting man. Haggai was a priest, an old man, and he remembered the way things used to be in the good old days, when the Temple in Jerusalem was filled to the brim with worshippers. And Haggai was upset to see the Temple in decay and ruin. And here he was, in the twilight of his years, and now God had given him the most important task of his life. Because even though Haggai was old, he had a consuming passion for God's glory. He was determined and stubborn and he would not rest – he would not die in peace - until this Temple he had loved since his youth was made to look beautiful again and filled, every square inch of it, with worshippers.

And the work which Haggai had to do was to ask the worshipping community to review its priorities and get them to think through what is important in life and in the worship of God.

And when they had done that and reviewed their community life appropriately, Haggai disappeared. He was only with them for 15 weeks – and then he disappeared. It's almost as if the Nunc Dimittis was written for him, isn't it? "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace according to thy word; for mine eyes have seen thy salvation which thou has prepared before the face of all people…"

The people of Israel reviewed their priorities and committed themselves to a course of action and the task for Haggai was done.

We too, here at St. Paul's are at a similar moment where we have been called by God to review our priorities; to listen to each other, to listen to God, to listen to the community, and in the light of that, to begin to consider how we can become missionaries in our own time and space.

And there are just two points I want to make from this passage in Haggai which are important to our situation today.

The people of Israel – just like us today recognised that this was their moment. Haggai has said to them, "Come on, now is the time…" and in obedience to God, and in obedience to what they had heard as a community, they marked the moment for the next phase of their life together.

And there was something intensely practical about their Mission Plan, verse 8: "Go up to the hills and bring wood and build the Temple…" Of course they needed to develop in prayer and spirituality together. But that spiritual life was deeply intertwined with the practicalities of Mission and Ministry in the community. God is giving us an invitation to get involved.

Secondly, when God calls, we must obey that call. It is as simple as that. In Chpt 1: v 12-15 it says "The people obeyed the voice of the Lord their God…." The power for change, the power for growth, was not in their numerical strength or their financial strength. It was in their attitude of heart; an attitude of obedience. What we need for our church to grow as we enter this new stage in our mission and ministry life together is to have a heart for God, a heart for Growth, a heart of Sacrifice, and a heart of Obedience. Attitude, not numbers, is what this church will be built on. And when the people obey, God responds '"I am with you" declares the Lord"'. Such wonderful words of encouragement. How can we fail if God is on our side? In verse 14 we hear these lovely, lovely words: "so the Lord stirred up the spirit of the whole remnant of the people. They came and began to work on the house of the Lord Almighty."

There is a saying that 'If you don't use it, you will lose it'. If you don't listen to God's call to build his church, if there is no response in your heart, then we will lose all that we have strived for over the Century. Where is your heart?

My prayer is that God will bless our ministry in the community and that God will bless each one of us in our response; that we may have the courage of our convictions and the strength to obey God's commands so that his name will be glorified in us and through us. Amen.

Yours in Christ, Doreen

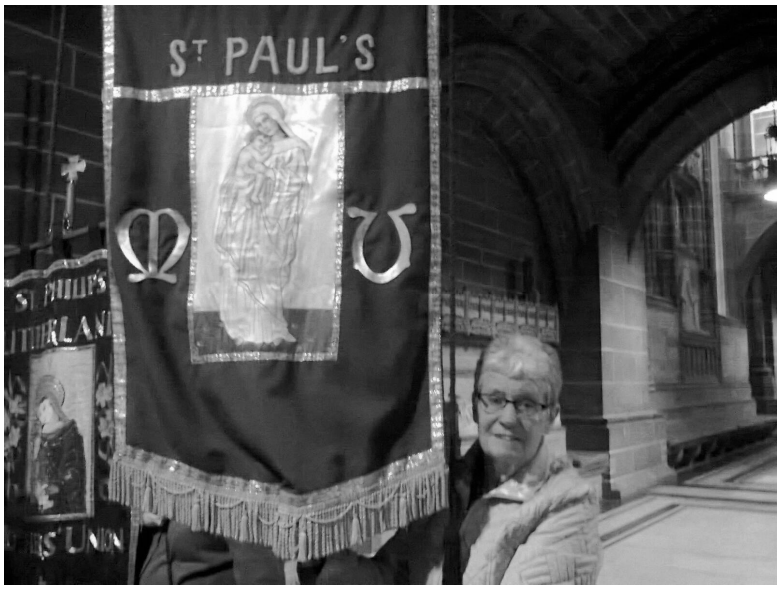
Mothers' UNION
Christian care for families

Hello everyone
I hope you all had a wonderful Easter.

March We hosted Hindley Churches Together in St Paul's Church. It was a Roger Jones musical called Angel Voices. A lovely evening enjoyed by all, a well-attended performance. Afterwards refreshments were served, beautiful cakes and scones made by Kathleen. There was a retiring offering and we raised one hundreds and forty pounds for Christian Music Ministries.
I went to St James House at the beginning of March to a branch leaders meeting. We were able to meet the new Diocesan President and Trustees of the Mothers Union in our deanery. It was good for me to meet other B L and to put faces to names. We all received an up to date copy of the rules and regulations. We went on the train and it was an informative day.
On Saturday the 23rd of March Sarah and I went to the Cathedral to the Commissioning Service of the new President Officers and Trustees. It was a communion service with a parade of all the M.U banners. Photos at the bottom of the page. At this service the Bishop and his wife were made members of the M.U. Also photo of Bishop high fiving our Mini M.U .which is a group Liverpool have set up to get young people interested. Altogether a lovely day.



April Ann Birch spoke to us on a psalm that is meaning a lot to her on her walk with God. It was very moving and thought provoking and touched a lot of people, interspersed with some light hearted and amusing true to life whimsical poems. A very good evening.

God Bless

Anne

What's so important about the Trinity?

'We worship one God in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity; neither confounding the Persons, nor dividing the Essence.' (Athanasian Creed).

On Trinity Sunday we will celebrate God as one God in three Persons. This understanding is based on how we see God at work in the world. We trust in a God who is: 'God the Father, source of all being and life, the one for whom we exist; God the Son, who took our human nature, died for us and rose again and God the Holy Spirit, who gives life to the people of God and makes Christ known in the world' (CofE Baptism Service).

The Trinity provides a model for Christian community. God the Father, Son and Holy Spirit relate together in a love relationship of mutual accountability with one another. They complement and build on the work of each other. At His baptism, Jesus the Son is obedient to His Father, who declares His approval as the Spirit anoints Jesus for ministry. 'The Holy Spirit descended on Him in bodily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven: 'You are my Son, whom I love; with you I am well pleased.' (Luke 3:22). To what extent does the life of our church reflect this?

We also find our mission in the Trinity. Jesus said, 'As the Father has sent me, I am sending you.' (John 20:21). As the Father sent His Son into the world, so Jesus sends us out to do the Father's work, equipped by the Spirit of God. How are we called to share in God's mission ourselves?

If we live with a renewed awareness of the Trinity, our spiritual lives will deepen, our vision of God's mission will expand and take on a new vitality.What's so important about the Trinity?

This month the Church remembers the Irish monk who first brought Christianity to Britain in around 565. He was St Columba, and he left Ireland with 12 companions to settle on Iona, a tiny island off Mull, in the Western Highlands. Iona had been given to him for a monastery by the ruler of the Irish Dalriada. Columba's biographer, Adomnan, portrays him as a tall, striking figure of powerful build and impressive presence, who combined the skills of scholar, poet and ruler with a fearless commitment to God's cause. For as well as building his monastery on Iona, Columba also converted Brude, king of the Picts.

God MOO-ves in mysterious way to save woman in Azerbaijan

A cow has played an unlikely role in leading a young woman in Azerbaijan to faith in Jesus Christ.

Azerbaijan sits between Russia and Iran and has very few Christians. So Rena was furious that her sister and mother had become Christians in the Muslim-dominated nation. She scorned them, “Will you shame us among people, maybe you will even put a cross on your house?”

Her mother simply held out the New Testament and said, “If you knew about this book, you’d want to read it.”

Then one day Rena lost her cow and spent three days searching in vain for the animal. On the third day, she thought, “They say Jesus Christ is alive. If this is true, let my cow return to me, and I will believe in Him.

“As it got darker, we went again along the road, and in lights from the cars I saw something running toward us. It was my cow! Then I said, ‘Lord, I believe that You are truth’ and when I came back to my courtyard with the cow I said, ‘My cow has been found and Jesus Christ made it happen!’

“From that day I am a Christian and I am following Jesus,” Rena said. She now attends a growing church, which receives help for renting a meeting place from Barnabas Fund.

Do you admit to going to church?

Shhhh

“In the US you have to be religious to be elected, in the UK you increasingly have to pretend not to be.” So says Fraser Nelson, editor of The Spectator. In a recent newspaper article* he pointed out in the UK, “an MP is quite at liberty to talk about their faith, but they ought to realise it comes at a cost to their credibility.

‘This is a side effect of the ongoing collapse of religiosity in Britain. Polls show that barely a quarter of us now profess faith in God or a ‘spiritual higher power’.”

Fraser Nelson continues: “As churchgoing becomes rarer, it is seen as stranger. More suspect. This increases the incentives to cover up one’s faith and treat it like a dirty secret. So, we end up with two self-reinforcing forces: the decline of people going to church – and the decline of churchgoers willing to admit it.”

He concludes that: “To be Christian in Britain today is to navigate your way through one of the fastest religious changes in the history of these islands.”

* Daily Telegraph, ‘The decline of religion accelerates when Christians hide their faith’, by Fraser Nelson, 30.03.19

More churches than pubs

The UK now has more churches than pubs, according to new data published by the National Churches Trust. There are around 39,000 pubs in the UK, according to the latest figures from the Office of National Statistics, with more than 11,000 pubs having closed in the UK in the last decade – a fall of almost a quarter (23%) However, there are around 40,300 church buildings in the UK open to the public and being used for worship, according to research carried out for the National Churches Trust by the Brierley Consultancy.

The number of church buildings is also substantially higher than other key public buildings in the UK. There are currently around 14,300 supermarkets operated by grocery retailers, 11,500 post office branches, 7,500 bank branches and 3,600 public libraries.

An increasing number of churches in the UK are also becoming local 'community hubs', hosting children's nurseries, senior citizen lunch clubs, concerts and exhibition venues. Some even house post-offices, GP surgeries and farmer's markets. Around 6,000 of the UK's approximately 32,000 polling places are located in church buildings.

Holidays can be ‘holy days’

No doubt you are beginning to look forward to your summer holidays. Just think about it – sun, sea and sand, time to relax and unwind, no deadlines to meet, no responsibilities to shoulder . . . ah, bliss!

We are fortunate to live at a time when workers are encouraged to take time off from work for the sake of their well-being. Most employees are given 4-6 weeks paid holiday each year, plus Bank Holidays. What a blessing that is, and a far cry from the day when the only time workers had off was on church Feast days – the original holy days.

This year, rather than go on holiday and forget God, we might use our time away to become even more aware of God’s presence in our lives. Here’s how:

(1) Thank God for recreation. Whatever helps you relax and wind-down is a gift from God to be received with thankfulness and enjoyed to the full.

(2) Take extra time to sleep and adopt a slower pace. This is how you will recharge your batteries and be refreshed.

(3) Make space for the relationships that matter to you, especially your family and friends. Enjoy each other’s company, talk and laugh together, enjoy unhurried meals.

(4) Notice God in the world around you. Let the beauty of God’s creation fill your soul with wonder. Linger and look deeply at everything you see.

(5) Take a good book with you that will nourish your inner life; listen to music that will help you relax. Breathe deeply and walk slowly, there’s no need to rush.

Psalm 23:2 comes to mind: ‘He makes me lie down in green pastures, He leads me beside quiet waters, He restores my soul.’

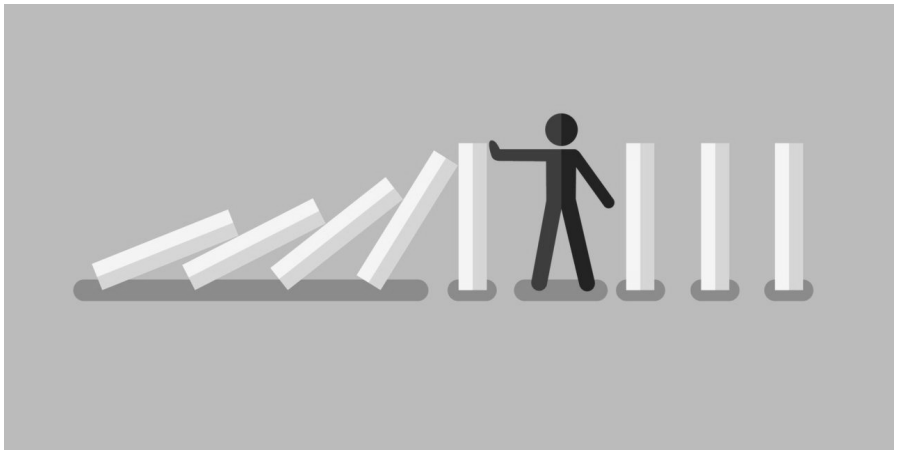
Happy Holidays!

Resilience and faith in God

I have a great love for the Bible, especially the stories of men and women who lived their lives by faith. Not only did they display great trust in God, but also great resilience, often keeping going in the face of great adversity.

Nehemiah is such a person. His great achievement was to take a bunch of dispirited and down-hearted individuals and, in spite of much opposition and danger, motivate them to work together in a hostile environment to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. This enormous task they achieved against the odds, and in a surprisingly short time – it took them only 52 days (Nehemiah 6:15)!

At the heart of Nehemiah's resilience was his faith in God. Even secular writers recognise the part that faith plays in building resilience. Nehemiah believed that the God of heaven was in control and His purposes were being worked out (Nehemiah 1:5). Since God had called him to the task, he would make sure that he could complete it. This kind of positive thinking is helpful when facing challenging circumstances. Nehemiah maintained a confident, hope-filled attitude even when things were against him.



Not only did this buoyant attitude keep Nehemiah going, it also motivated the people to persevere when at times they may have despaired and given up. Nehemiah persevered not because of his dogged determination, but because he was in touch with a source of strength outside himself. He had a deep, inner life with God that was expressed in prayer. Instinctively, he turned to God at every moment of fear, anxiety and need.

Pastoral Support
The Queen's Hall offers confidential support for those who are going through any personal problem. The service is free and available on each Thursday 9.00am. to 5.00pm. You will need to make an appointment and that can be arranged by phoning 07944014246 any day.

Standing Order

Have you thought about giving your gift this way? It helps us manage our budget and gain our tax relief. The scheme is confidential, most of our P.C.C. members now subscribe to it, why not follow their lead? For more information see Gordon or one of the Wardens.

Prayer Box

The Prayer Box is situated by the Bookstall at the back of church. It is for anyone who has a prayer request—just write it on one of the leaflets and put in the box provided. All these requests are prayed for by the Monday group and others.
